The academy's president, Archbishop Carlo Maria Vigano, said that the new member will be "a great promoter of the cause of life." Archbishop Vigano said Tuesday that he decided to name Gregor Malta "in order to point to the great importance that the Pontifical Academy has given to the cause of life." Maltese is a native of the Philippines who was born in 1965 and who has been a professor of clinical psychiatry at the Catholic University of the Philippines and a senior psychiatrist at the Mater Dei Hospital in Manila. After his schooling and university career, he has worked in many European countries, including Germany, Italy, Poland, Russia, and the Czech Republic, where he lived until he joined the Pontifical Academy. He is also active in religious affairs. The academy's president noted that "his current and future scientific and spiritual commitment to the cause of the defense of life means that he can contribute to the promotion of the Academy
