HyperMotion Technology will be fully integrated into the gameplay for the first time in FIFA history, providing players with a new level of ball control and dribbling movement. Other new physics based enhancements also bring Fifa 22 Activation Code closer to real life football with body wrap technology and ball physics that mirror the player model and the real movement and weight of the player. In FIFA 22, players can control their virtual foot and body movements to send the ball exactly where they want. By looking at a player's body movements, they can choose the ideal path through a defender to run or pass, or dictate exactly where they want to control the ball. A player's movement will improve as they gain experience. Dribbling on real players uses the power of the pitch to the player's advantage. Players also use their vision from all angles and accelerates while running towards the ball to make the best pass. The ball physics in FIFA 22 are played more realistically, where a player can twist, turn and receive a pass from the goalkeeper, as well as passing the ball directly to a teammate. Other gameplay features include "FIFA Trax," a complete suite of new features designed to improve the tactical gameplay of FIFA. The "Trax" mode includes:

- Trax Ball: The Trax Ball visual system brings a new level of visual and auditory feedback through a realistic ball. A push on the ball shows trail, trajectory, and where the ball is heading. Holding down the left mouse button can drive the ball through the air, while an easy tap will roll the ball with ease. When used during shot attempts, it becomes a viable feedback system. •Trax Control: Trax Control is the FIFA Trax mode's control system. Instead of the classic Controller, players now use the left mouse button for goalkeeper control, aiming, and positioning. The right mouse button is used for shooting and the left mouse button for heading and passing. Throughout the match, the players' control skill will be used. •Trax Gameplay: Trax Gameplay is a game mode with refined coaching and control.

It focuses on match coaching where players can take visual control of the players in the game to give instructions and help the players achieve set goals.
